200 Injured When Fire Wrecks Camden, N. J., Paint Factory

From five to ten persons were reported missing and more than 200 injured after a series of 21 explosions started a fire, which, fed by chemicals, rapidly converted the paint plant of the R. M. Hollingshead company in Camden, N. J., into a blazing inferno. This Inter-national Illustrated News photograph, taken from an airplane, shows the fire at its height. Employees, both men and women, were trapped by the fast-spreading flames and were forced to flee through doors and windows.STATE'S HEAT TOLL CLIMBING103 Deaths Attributed To Weather; Forecasters Say CoolerHeat deaths in Ohio reached the level of the state's torrid temperatures today, but there was a new promise of relief.The death toll for the past 12 days stood at 103, with 17 prostration fatalities—the largest number for a single day—reported yesterday.An official forecast from Washington was for fair but cooler weather with showers in the south portion only, while at Cleveland, Meteorologist Ralph C. Mize predicted relief would come from scattered thundershowers. It was 92 in Salem again yesterday.Cool air from the upper Great Lakes region will cause rain and moderate temperatures that "should prevail several days," Mize said.Meanwhile, the whining dry spell brought a one-cent increase in quart milk prices at Cleveland and threat of a shortage in Hamilton county. W. E. Weaver, superintendent of the Hamilton county experiment farm, reported "serious" pasture and hay losses would result unless there is rain soon.Game wardens and sportsmen formed rescue squads to remove fish from streams drying up due to lack of rain. The fish are taken in tank trucks to other waters.Spontaneous combustion believed caused by the heat started a fire on an Ashtabula county farm. Loss was estimated at $4,000.Thermometers registered 120 degrees on some street corners in downtown Columbus yesterday, and Acting Police Chief Thomas A.
Scully ordered traffic policemen to hunt shady spots if the heat threatened to make them ill.Columbus' official reading was 98.7—the hottest July 30 since 1887.
Springfield, which has had six heat prostrations, reported an unofficial reading of 107, three above last Sunday's record. Cincinnati's official temperature was 101, but the mercury rose to 105 at Lanken airport. Dayton had 95, Youngstown 94 and Cleveland, cooled somewhat by Lake Erie breezes, had a high of 82.Weather Results
In Crop DamagesWASHINGTON, July 31.—Hot, dry weather of the past week has caused new damage to growing crops and pastures in portions of the midwestern corn belt, the central great plains and rocky mountain areas.Reporting this today, the weather bureau said damage to the tasseling corn crop was heaviest in Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, Minnesota, and locally in Iowa and sections of the Ohio river valley.English Tradition Shattered By WarLONDON, July 31.—The war upset another tradition today when the opening date for grouse shooting was advanced from the traditional Aug. 12 to Aug. 5. The law prohibiting killing of game in Wales and England on Sundays also was suspended.The change was made because birds are expected to be plentiful and civilian sportsmen fewer.Republics In united front today against political and economic dangers from other continents in a three-point program which Secretary of State Hull regarded with deep satisfaction despite last-minute reservations by eight nations.The Havana conference, after setting up new machinery to bolster the solidarity of the western hemisphere, concluded last night with formal signature of documents amid flurries of cheers.All the delegates signed the "Act of Havana" and supplementary agreements, although the Argentine delegation, which had argued against anticipating need of action concerning European colonies in the new world—led seven other nations in a succession of reservations.Ask Ratification The delegates of Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Uruguay and Venezuela specified that the agreements be

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Census counters scrambled population standings of America's big cities today to create a "biggest list for 1940."The list generally includes the same cities as in 1930, but 13 of the top 25 have different ranks than 10 years ago.In line with forecasts that rural territories, especially suburban areas, were gaining at the expense of big cities, eight of the first 25 showed losses—Philadelphia, Cleveland, St. Louis, Boston, Pittsburgh, San Francisco, Newark, and Roch-

CAMDEN, N. J., July 31.—Blinding heat blocked today an immediate search for bodies of the missing dead after fire and explosions that destroyed a million-dollar factory and at least 67 homes in a four-block area at midtown Camden.Mrs. Mary W. Kobus, director of public safety, expressed fear the death toll might exceed the number indicated in still incomplete checks. She said insurance underwriters thought "probably seven persons" were dead."But I am not so hopeful," said Mrs. Kobus, who remained at the scene all night.With the picture still far from clear, unofficial reports on the $2-million disaster—worst in Camden's history—showed:Two known dead Four women and a man definitely missing.Possibly four or five more unaccounted for—subjects of inquiries at hospitals and relief stations, but not given up.Upwards of 200 injured or affected by heat or smoke, many treated at the scene.Of those in the hospitals, attendants said four were in critical condition.Scores Are Homeless An army of volunteers undertook the task of caring for scores of families made temporarily homeless. Most of these—about 200—were sheltered in dormitories of Camden's naval militia armory.Four hours after the first explosion at the R. M. Hollingshead Paint Co. plant, which set off the fires that quickly grew and spread, a state of emergency was declared in the stricken surrounding area.
It was near dusk before the fire was brought under control.Here is an unofficial tabulation of the dead and those missing:

bearer in 1932, to campaign actively in his behalf.The brown-dieried "happy war-Willkie's calendar for today."I am greatly pleased that one of Governor Smith's public standing

Willkie said after learning of the New Yorker's declaration.Praises Liberal Standards
He referred to President Roosevelt's recent comment that some prominent Democrats who had offered their support to Willkie thought more of money than humanity, and remarked:"I hope that is not said of Gov-the sidewalks of New York. He was a great liberal governor of New York."As a matter of fact, his liberal principles were those adopted by his two successors, Franklin Roosevelt and Governor Herbert Lehman."Smith, who took a walk out of his party's 1936 convention, said in a lengthy statement that "Willkie's

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The house appropriations committee recommended today the spending of nearly five billion more dollars to start a "two ocean" Navy and equip an Army which might number 2,000,000 men on combat status.The huge expenditure—exactly $4,963,151,957—which President Roosevelt said was necessary to give the nation "total defense", would bring the session's appropriations and contract authorizations for the Army and Navy to the record-breaking total of $10,040,225,543.Of the pending bill's total, $2,234-

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The senate military committee amended the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill today to require the registration only of men from 21 to 31 years old instead of those between 18 to 64.Future Purchases While the committee emphasized that much of the equipment to be bought with the new money would not be obtainable for months to come, it asserted that approval of the program at this time would enable production and procurement agencies of the government to plan their work efficiently."Piecemeal programs mean piecemeal preparation", the committee said, "which is neither sound nor practical in an emergency nor good business procedure."During hearings on the measure, Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, testified that if Congress authorizes immediate mobilization of the National guard and a system of compulsory military training—both of which he said would be needed imperatively—an additional $1,000,000,000 would be needed for maintenance of such a force in the current fiscal year.Specific details as to the number of tanks, guns and other weapons which would be procured were kept secret but the committee recommended approval of the budget bill request for 14,390 airplanes of various types, of which 4,028 would go to the navy.Itemized Program Except for a $7,000,000 item for a large drydock in New York harbor, the bulk of pending authorizing legislation, the committee approved the President's requests without change.In broad outline, the new funds and contractual authority would be as follows: New ship construction, $230,000,000; alteration and conversion of naval vessels, $75,000,000; aircraft for both Army and Navy, $2,068,402,304; material for Army, Navy and Marine corps, $2,037,705-017; public works projects for Army and Navy, including housing and storage facilities, $158,352,800; additional production facilities, $335-000,000.A new semi-automatic rifle which would cost half as much as the Garand, now the Army's standard, was described by Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, commander of the Massachusetts National Guard, as "the most important development in small arms since the machine gun."He said that in a demonstration by the makers, the Winchester Repeating Arms Co. the weapon "appeared to us to be a complete answer to what we need."Ohio's Highways Damaged by HeatCOLUMBUS, July 31.—The current heat wave dealt Ohio highways a devastating blow.Hal G. Sours, assistant state highway director, reported today that the greatest number of "blow ups" in history had resulted from the continuous heat."It would only be by the wildest of guessing to even try estimating the loss," Sours said.A "blowup" is an eruption of a road, caused by buckling of concrete or brick.Army Plane Falls

United States army bomber was reported to have crashed and burned shortly before noon today in an isolated area some 40 miles southeast of this city.The plane, from France field, Canal Zone, had been towing aerial targets.Statement Brings Speculation; Air
Attacks ContinueFascist Editor Says English Must Be Weakened By Bombs and Blockade; New Italian, Nazi Troop Movements Seen(By Associated Press.) Italy was told today that England probably would not be invaded until the British people are weakened by bombs and blockade.Even as Italian troops were reported moving up to the 800-mile German-held continental coastline to join the Nazi blitzkrieg veterans for the projected assault, Virginio Gayda, Fascist editor, cautioned his countrymen not to expect a tack immediately.Whether his article, which appeared in Il Giornale D'Italia, actually spoke the mind of Premier Mussolini or was intended merely to confuse the British as to prospects for an immediate assault was a matter of speculation.Gayda nonetheless repeated what British military spokesman and statement have long contended—that an invasion of the British isles would not be a simple military advance.That kind of lightning warfare which Germany demonstrated in Poland, Norway, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg and finally in France is not practical in Britain's case, said Gayda.Instead, he wrote that tactics of attrition must be used—constant attacks to demoralize the population and destroy island defenses; attacks on ships bringing supplies to England, and a strong submarine blockade and a weakening of empire defenses in the Mediterranean.Attack At Hand?
On the other hand, the belief that the blow might be struck at any moment was strengthened by reports from Vichy, France, that postal, telephone and telegraph communications had been suspended between German-occupied France and that part which is still free.A plea which some observers took as an implication that Spain would try to stay out of the war was voiced in the Falangist newspaper Arriba de Madrid—a plea for help from the United States to put Spain back on her feet after her civil war.German bombers continued to pick at the British isles, but the fierceness of the recent attacks was somewhat abated.The partial success of the German aim to render British ports useless—Swansea and Plymouth were bombed last night—was conceded today by Shipping Minister Ronald H. Cross. He confirmed reports that some of Britain's busiest pre-war ports are virtually closed.Britain nevertheless expects to overcome all handicaps, he said, and, with her great merchant fleet strengthened by new ships, maintain her supplies of food and nutrients.Delegations from the Baltic states of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania arrived in Moscow for tomorrow's session of the Supreme Soviet, Russia's parliament which is to admit the three states to the Soviet union.Troops Are Massed Reports from Switzerland that Italy was massing troops on the coast said Adolf Hitler had granted Mussolini's request for Italian participation in the invasion of England.Italy's contribution was said to be a "token" one, including German-trained parachute troops, light submarines, shipped through the Brenner pass for use in the English channel, and air squadrons.Reports from the continental storm centers pictured these as last minute preparations for simultaneous attack on England and her fortress rock, Gibraltar.1. Speeded movements of German troops west through France, masked by closing of rail communications to unoccupied France and all outlets but one to Switzerland; 2. concentration of Spanish troops at La Linea, back door to Gibraltar; 3. massing of Italian warplanes at Sardinia to join the Spanish in a possible drive to seize Gibraltar.Spanish said five more persons were killed and 15 wounded in bombings of the fortress rock yesterday, presumably by Italians.German raids on England and Wales continued during the night but the British government asserted there was "little damage" and no casualties.Germans claimed the bomber raids had damaged many of England's important south and east ports so badly that ships bringing food to the embattled island could no longer use them. Instead, it was said, much shipping had had to be rerouted to western ports—and even these are accessible targets for German bombers.

TWO KINDS OF HARD HEADS

This week it becomes impossible for dealers in scrap metal to export it without the federal government's permission—and permission, presumably, will be hard to get.

This does officially what most Americans have been in favor of doing all the time. It takes the United States out of the absurd position of helping nations not interested in helping it.

One of the nations is Japan, which has been obtaining as much as 85 percent of the scrap steel needed for its munitions industry from United States dealers. Americans have blushed often over this situation, so have some of the conscientious dealers.

They might have been spared the final blush of knowing that vessels are being loaded with scrap steel this week to get under the deadline. There are two kinds of hard heads among businessmen—heads which can't be penetrated by googoo arguments and heads which can't be penetrated by anything. Scrap metal dealers who helped to arm Japan for years contrary to public policy, then crowded in a last few frantic shiploads to beat the deadline tardily laid down by an administration which couldn't make up its mind must have consciences made of their stock in trade.

OVERDOING IT

A sympathizer with the British in their effort to stave off invasion could wish sometimes they were less successful in the aerial department. There is scant comfort in reports of successful British air raids along the French coast, of destructive forays deep into Germany, of Nazi raiders being shot down over Britain by the dozen.

The reports mean one of three things: (1) That British aviators and planes are superior to the enemy's aviators and planes, therefore more successful; (2) That British propagandists are stretching the truth to bolster morale; (3) That British counter-attacks and home defense are doing everything claimed for them in official announcements.

The first possibility may have something to it, but probably not much, because of Germany's admittedly larger air force. The second possibility may be ruled out. The third may be taken at its face value, which is where misgivings start. If Britain is doing as much damage as is claimed, then Germany, with more planes being aimed at a smaller target, must be blowing southern Britain to pieces, besides shooting down as many as 10 percent of all British planes being used for counter-attack.

DILEMMA FOR REGULARS

When soothsayers forecast the New Deal's chances of getting squared away to run President Roosevelt for a fourth term, they murmur somewhat as follows: "Solid south has 113 votes, um. Only takes 266 to hang on, um. Need 153 more. Get 49 of 'em in the border states, um. Pick up 40 more in California, Washington, New Mexico, Arizona and Montana. That leaves 64 to go, um. Illinois (Kelly-Nash), New Jersey (Hague) and Missouri (shades of Pendergast) and Iowa (Wallace) would do it, um."

The catch to the proposition is the solid south's 113 votes. As long as the south holds solid, the New Deal will be hard to beat. The instant its 100-odd votes slip, the New Deal is in hot water and regular Democrats will have a fighting chance to get back in the saddle.

It's something to remember when Wendell Willkie promises to campaign just as hard in the south as anywhere else and when old line Jeffersonians from the cotton belt swear they'd rather be shot, sub, than leave the party. As Mr. Willkie already has pointed out in that connection, it's the party which has left them, deserting the best friend it ever had.

WHATEVER BECOMES OF THEM?

This thought, of no importance whatever, hadn't intruded itself since one day last winter when no one could remember when the temperature hadn't been below freezing: What happens to the backward lookers when weather runs to extremes?

Backward lookers think weather is petering out, like humanity. The snows aren't so snowy and the winds aren't so blowy. And in the good old summertime—"You think this is hot? Well, just let me tell you about the time we fried eggs on the sidewalk in front of Joe Hoopedoodle's saloon."

Last winter, which was by way of being a record breaker, took the starch out of the backward lookers. They talked mighty small, particularly when they began to burn more coal than they'd ever burned before. This summer—this concentrated version of summer—they aren't saying a word, just gasping for air the same as everybody else.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, August 1

PRIVATE affairs of a domestic, social or sentimental character are to the fore on this day, with business or other commonplace activities centered on such intimate functions or ambitions. Friendship, courtship, all forms of conviviality and celebration, may be stressed.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which their purely personal adjustments to life may bring happiness and gratification. While the attitude may be steady, serious and worthy, pleasure, festivity and major activity may involve the domestic, social or emotional relations. Such business as relate to these or to artistic expression in any of its forms may contribute to make this a happy, joyous year.

A child born on this day should be studious, steadfast, and ambitious, although its aspirations may lie in the direction of art, social, or emotional expression. It should have a happy and successful life.

THE WAR TODAY

Whatever way you look at it, the anglo-axis war is headed for even greater tragedy than has yet been dealt out to unhappy Europe.

First has to be determined whether Herr Hitler can annihilate the English with his blitzkrieg—and this promises to provide one of the bloodiest battles in history, if he carries out his full program of invasion.

If he isn't able to knock Britain out in the immediate future by such an assault, the conflict will settle into a war of attrition. That will be nasty.

Each side will try to starve the other into submission by blockade. Apart from the suffering produced by hunger this means economic chaos for the whole continent.

Both sides will increase the intensity of their bombings—winter weather permitting—which means that the skies will continue to drench civilians with horrible death.

Widespread reports have it that the Germans and Italians are ready to launch the big assault on England. We are justified in assuming from all the facts at hand that they are indeed prepared, but we must wait the sailing of the Armada before we shall know that the invasion is a certainty. There is so much propaganda about these days that we have to depend a good deal on our eyes for the truth.

Britain's line of strategy is clearly indicated by her announcement that her naval blockade will be extended so to cover the entire continent of Europe, including Spain and Portugal. The Britons expect to beat off the blitzkrieg and intend to depend largely on the blockade to defeat the enemy.

More and more, too, Germany has been concentrating on creation of a counter blockade about the British isles. The Nazis are employing U-boats but are looking mainly to their great air fleet to enforce it.

The outcome of this starvation contest depends, of course, on how much the populations can stand in the way of punishment. It's not only a question of morale but of actual physical stamina.

OUR READERS

MILITARY TRAINING

Editor, The News:

Should universal compulsory military training in times of peace become the law of the land it would necessitate changes in our form of government. There could be no such thing as a soldier's republic, or a soldier's democracy. It would sound ridiculous for anyone to say that we must set up a totalitarian form of government of our own to protect a democracy of our own. A democracy can exist only where democratic processes are used.

Totalitarian forms of government hold their power only by use of military force, and not by the will of the people. By universal compulsory military service, requiring every person to spend several years of his life in armed camps, a government is given power over every individual to regulate his conduct and liberty that would be a danger to a democracy. The word military pertains only to arms, soldiers, and war, and for our government to stress these ideas on the minds of its citizens by compulsion, is contrary to lessons that are taught in past history.

Military law is held sufficient to justify damage to or destruction of rights conceded to exist in times of peace. There can be little or no objection to a reasonable amount of preparedness for emergency only. The wars in the past in which the United States has been engaged have proven that its citizens have been capable of defeating trained forces of the enemy decisively. This result must have been largely because of the spirit of its citizens, feeling that they had a government that was worth defending, and not because they might have spent years in military training camps.

Once compulsory military service is started here in the United States, it is historically certain that it will become permanent. Nations of Europe have had large standing armies, and instead of lessening them, they have increased, and there is every reason to believe that the same result would happen here. Military training tends to muzzle youth and make them submissive. Military training tends to discourage beneficial organizations among the people. The Golden Rule would become unknown, and fraternal and religious societies would suffer. There could be no such thing as collective bargaining, the influence of labor unions would cease. Other labor union activities would be imperiled by standing armies.

This nation has existed for 150 years without military conscription in time of peace, and in that time has passed through periods with problems and dangers fully as great as beset us now, so let us not change our manner of living to pattern after dangerous regimentation.

CARE OF BEST FRIEND

Editor, The News:

One of the prime requisites of your dog is exercise. He needs plenty to keep him fit. Were he free to roam he might take about a thirty mile hike in a day. So you see it takes more than a walk around the block to satisfy him.

Cleanliness is essential. Bathe him once a week at least in the summer, using a good flea soap. Brush him several times a week the year round. Never bathe puppies until at least 3 months of age. Brush and use a good flea powder.

There is really no set rules of how much to feed a dog. You must judge if he is getting enough by his coat and actions. Better a little hungry than over-fed. Avoid starchy foods, and sweets. No sharp bones, chicken or fish bones. Mineral oil once a week. Pinch of salt in his feed once a week. Vitamins ABCDE & G are essential as well as calcium, phosphorus, iodine, copper, manganese and sulphur as to minerals. Table scraps are good but avoid too rich foods. Get these in your prepared dog feed.

If he refuses to eat for a meal or two that is alright. Longer than that he should be checked up.

Watch his teeth, they go bad same as humans and you can appreciate this if you ever had toothache. Clean them with a tooth brush and powder as you would your own. Have bad ones removed.

Bad breath, watery eyes, ravenous appetite, pale gums, twitching while asleep, fits, etc. stones or sticks and skin eruptions are signs of worms. Have him checked up by a veterinarian. Many dogs are lost through trying to worm them yourself.

Follow these few simple instructions and your dog will give you the enjoyment you expected when you got him.

Bare Feet Invite Trouble; Go Shod, Is Doctor's Advice

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHENEVER the bare feet come in contact with the flooring of a shower bath or the platform around a swimming pool, or the springboard by river or ocean, there is the possibility of picking up a small vegetable fungus invisible to the eye, which lives to feed on moist human skin. It causes the commonest of American skin diseases—a breaking out in the form of little blisters, which itch intensely and become inflamed on scratching. This being the bare feet and swimming season they are particularly likely to occur.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only and then only through his column.

just now. When the skin gets wet it gives an additional invitation to ringworm invasion—commonly called athlete's foot.

Treat Promptly Get at it early with prompt treatment and you will save yourself a lot of trouble. If it develops into a chronic case, successful treatment is very difficult. The fungus will attack skin on any part of the body and may easily invade the hand, get under the fingernails from scratching and be carried to any part of the body. A complication occurs when the blisters get infected and this requires special treatment.

When you have a fresh eruption the blisters should be broken, using a fine needle that has been dipped in tincture of iodine and the entire surface painted with mild tincture of iodine (U.S.P.). The eruption is especially likely to appear between the toes, and in boy's schools is called toe rot. If the iodine does not clear it up apply Whitfield's ointment, obtainable at any drug store, for a few nights.

Prevention of reinfection is important. Stockings should be changed daily. Disinfection of shoes may be done by inserting a piece of blotting paper on which has been poured a teaspoonful of Formaldehyde solution, wrap them up for twenty-four hours and then give them a good airing.

When infection has occurred and pus forms the part should be treated with gauze soaked in 1 to 1000 bichloride of mercury solution.

"TITAN TOWER" by JAMES G. CHESNUTT

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

Linda, looking into Steve's eyes, knew the greatest pain was not that in his hands, but that in his heart. In Steve's eyes she saw reflected the grim knowledge that his dream of becoming a famed architect—of one day creating "My Building"—had been shattered by a young girl's criminal carelessness.

"Oh, STEVE!" Linda cried. "DON'T let it hurt you so. It's not that bad . . . the doctors can . . ."

She hadn't meant to let go that way—to fling her arm tenderly about Steve's pain-hunched shoulders—to act like a ninny instead of a nurse.

Of course, the narcotic which Dr. Blaine had administered had taken effect by that time. But no analgesic could have soothed Steve's heart and his tortured mind the way that Linda's quick impulsive act had accomplished it.

By the time Bill Blaine had probed and dressed the wound in Steve's left hand, Dr. Renquist had entered and was taking a part in examination of the more grievously injured right hand.

The injury to the left hand had been minor, by comparison. It was a clean puncture wound, made by the screwdriver, which, fortunately, missed striking any bones.

But the right, the one which Steve needed most—well, that was another matter.

Partly because Dr. Renquist and Miss Gillen, Bill Blaine's office nurse, were present; but more because she didn't want Steve to hear what she had to ask, Linda, in an aside, whispered a question to Bill.

The blonde head nodded affirmatively and, a moment later, he joined Linda in a small outer office.

"Bill," she asked tensely when he had closed the door, "I MUST know. Can you save his hand, so he can use it freely, work with it, I mean?"

Dr. Blaine took a cigarette from a pack he had drawn from his pocket, and Linda noticed that his hand—the hand which had been so steady under similar circumstances on the roof—was not so steady now.

After a long pause, which Linda thought would never end, as he lit the cigarette, took a puff, inhaled deeply and exhaled with a puff that signaled relieved tension, Bill looked directly at her.

"It's quite a mess," he said. "But you can fix it, Bill—YOU can. You're the best bone surgeon in the building . . ."

"It's not only the bones," Blaine replied somewhat shortly. Linda thought. "The tendons are cut . . ."

"TENDONS?" Linda was near the screaming point. "Tendons can be spliced . . ."

"Of course," Blaine interrupted. "There's no danger that he'll lose his hand. It's just a question of whether he'll have free and full use of it again. The worst thing is possibility of nerve injury. A good man might be able to fix it as good as new. But whether I'm the man . . ."

"Bill," Linda's voice was sharp now. "YOU MUST . . . you just MUST save that hand!"

Blaine looked at her a long moment before he answered. Then he said very quietly:

"I didn't know Hubbard meant so much to you, Linda. I'll do the very best I can."

Linda wanted to say: It's not what he means to me, it's what his hand means to HIM!

Instead she said: "Thank you, Bill. I knew you would."

"Have them get the emergency ready downstairs, please," Bill directed.

When Linda and Bill returned to the treatment room they found Rennie Renquist and Miss Gillen alone with Steve.

Merry Blaine, they were told, had gone out, upset and nearly frantic; had gone to see if she could find her father in the building.

"She MUST be excited," Bill grunted. "She knew he'd gone out of town . . ."

"Steve," Linda said, trying to smile, "Dr. Blaine's going to fix your hand—as good as new."

"Swirl," Steve said. "Gonna give the boy a good hand, eh?"

And Linda saw that Steve could grin again.

As Linda rode down to the fourteenth floor in the elevator, to have the emergency operating room prepared for Dr. Blaine's operation upon Steve's hand, she had two men on her mind—Steve Hubbard and Bill Blaine.

At the same moment, thirteen floors below, two other girls had one man on their minds. The girls were Jo and Janice and the man was—well, that's what they wanted to know.

Jo and Janice, returning from a late lunch hour, were unaware of the accident to Steve and the drama going on thirteen floors above. But they had their own little private drama, mostly mystery.

"I think he's a haunt," Jo remarked behind her hand to her girl friend. "Let's call him the Specter. Someone must have hired him to haunt the building."

"Sssh!" Janice admonished. "He'll hear you."

The object of their attention had picked the girls' interest for the last three days. Every day, particularly during the noon hour, the man in question was to be seen, seated on the first marble bench in the building lobby, watching all passersby with sly intentness.

He sat there, immobile, moving only his eyes, dressed all in black—slouch hat, suit and shoes—a clear jutting from one corner of his mouth. He looked a little sinister.

"Who do you think he is?" Janice asked as they rode up in the elevator. "He acts like he's watching for somebody . . . or waiting for something."

"Probably a street car," Jo supplied. "I'll ask my boss to investigate."

The drama upstairs, in the fourteenth floor operating room, of which Jo and Janice had been unaware, was a tense one, indeed. Much more tense than even Linda knew.

In the small operating room there had not been space nor need for Linda. Dr. Blaine and Dr. Renquist had been aided by their own nurse, Miss Gillen, while Linda waited anxiously outside.

Miss Gillen could have told Linda, but didn't, of how Bill Blaine had gone just so far in the surgery upon Steve's hand; had stopped, befuddled, rubbed his gloved hands across his perspiring brow and had said, sickly:

"I . . . I can't finish it, Ren—take over!"

Miss Gillen could have told how Dr. Renquist had started on a job badly bungled, had straightened out Blaine's mistakes, and had swiftly and expertly performed a brilliant piece of surgery . . . But Miss Gillen didn't tell.

"Is . . . is he going to be all right?" Linda asked, rushing up to Blaine as they brought Steve from the operating room.

"Yes . . . I think so," Blaine answered, color returning to his blanched face. "We did the best we could."

It was then that Dr. Renquist exploded. It was an explosion long overdue. Behind it was all the pent-up feeling which he had stifled month after month.

"You did what?" Renquist roared. "Why don't you tell her the truth? Why don't you tell her it's no fault of yours that the guy still has a hand? Go on, Dr. Fancypants, TELL HER! You windbag . . ."

Linda had tried not to collapse throughout the whole ordeal. But when Bill Blaine lashed out with his fist at Renquist, Linda was the one who fell—that old failing, failing sensation.

And the whole room did a black-out.

"A girl," Jo Monroe was saying, "has a perfect right to faint once in her life. It's a feminine prerogative. Makes the males kid themselves into thinking they're the stronger sex."

The three girls, Linda, Janice and Jo, were together in the kitchen of the two roommates' small apartment, settling life's vital questions over the coffee cups—even as they had done that night when Jo gave Linda the unasked advice to "play smart and play single."

Once again, Jo had launched into an oration:

"What I mean is, if you happened to pass out on your doctor boy-friend, so what? I don't see why you should go around all disconsolate and remorseful with your chin so low you have to step over it to keep from tripping."

"It's just tired, that's all. One darn thing after another. Mickey's sick scare, Steve's accident, Bill . . ."

"Bill," exulted Jo, "I knew you'd get around, sooner or later, to your favorite topic!"

"You hush, Jo!" It was the sharp, staccato cry which Janice spoke. Jo's arching brows framed an unspoken question. Linda spoke hers.

"You seem upset when I mention Bill's name, Jan," Linda asked. "Is it because you know him well—better than you've let us see?"

"There, it was out!" Linda had asked it; that question which spawned from the seed planted in Linda's mind by the idle gossip of "Oriole," the Titan Tower scandal-monger.

"Why NO, Linda," Janice was flushed. "It's not that at ALL, honey. I just get mad when Jo picks on you. If you love the Doctor, that's your business!"

"Then you're not keeping back any secret from Mother?" Jo wanted to know. She was smiling, but Janice wasn't.

"No," Janice said. "You know I'd never keep any secret from you girls, except . . . She stopped, and her color rose even higher. "Except one," she finished.

"So . . . ?" Jo said. "If I loved a man and he had a good reason for wanting to keep it secret, I . . . I wouldn't even tell you."

For once Jo didn't joke. She and Linda let it go at that.

YOU KNOW THE LEADER IN TRUCK SALES MUST BE THE LEADER IN TRUCK VALUE

Truck buyers are careful buyers—they thoroughly analyze and compare all types of trucking equipment—they want to make certain that they'll get the make and type of truck best suited to their business requirements.

It is a significant fact that more truck users choose Chevrolet than any other make of truck . . . because Chevrolet trucks could not have established their record of leadership in 1940 and maintained it for six out of the last eight years had it not been that Chevrolet trucks deliver more dollar-for-dollar value than any other make.

All models and types of Chevrolet trucks may still be purchased at today's low price levels, so it would be wise to consider replacing some of your trucking equipment with new Chevrolets now.

TRUCK BUYERS DEMAND FACTS—Chevrolet Gives Certified Proof

Truck buyers are often bombarded with claims about the respective merits of various makes of trucks. But wise truck-buyers say, "Give me facts—give me proof—I must run my business according to actual facts and figures and I demand the same kind of facts about the truck I buy."

WRITE FOR FREE BOOKLET "Says Who?"

In order to provide conclusive proof of the dependability, economy, and value of Chevrolet trucks, Chevrolet recently sponsored a test run of a stock Chevrolet truck which was the longest test run ever conducted under the supervision of Association.

The performance facts compiled from this history-making test run are all contained in an interesting booklet entitled "Says Who?" You may obtain one from your Chevrolet dealer or by writing to Chevrolet Motor Division, General Motors Sales Corporation, General Motors Building, Detroit, Michigan.

BALLOT MARK CHANGE SEEN

Cross 'Neath Party Emblem Invalid On Presidential Ticket

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, July 31.—For the first time in Ohio history, voters this fall will be unable to vote a straight presidential ticket by putting a cross mark under the eagle or the rooster.

A single cross mark still will do the trick, however, since the presidential ballot—the shortest of record in Ohio—will bracket presidential and vice presidential candidates of each party with a single square provided at the left of the names for the voters' selection.

Secretary of State George M. Nefner declared that a voter attempting to select a presidential candidate in one party and a vice presidential candidate in another would mutilate his ballot and prevent its tabulation.

In past instances when state and national ballots were separate the national ballot carried the names of presidential electors immediately following the names of candidates for president and vice president.

Since 1932, however, the names of the electors have been omitted, a vote for the national candidates being considered a vote for each of his electors. Lists of electors are filed officially with the secretary of state.

Voters will have a chance to vote straight tickets by marking in the circle under the eagle or rooster on the state ballot. A cross mark in the circle will count as a vote for every candidate on that ticket.

Scratching on the state ticket can be done as in the past in two ways. The voter may ignore the circle and place a cross before the names of candidates on either party ticket or he may place the cross within the circle of the party having the most candidates of his choice and marking the squares in front of candidates' names on another ticket.

NO RHYME, REASON TO AMERICAN LOOP RACE

LEETONIA WINS THIRD GAME OF 2ND HALF RACE

Class A League Offers Two Close Games At Park

The Class A softball league produced two close games at Centennial park last evening as the Leetonia Merchants nipped the Martin Tires, 4 to 3, in one tilt and Mullins Manufacturers squeezed past Washingtonville, 5 to 4, in the other fray.

The Leetonians, posting their third win of the second half to remain tied for the lead with the National Sanitary, Salem Recreation and Salem Saxons, went one extra inning before getting by Martin's.

Score Tied Twice

The score was tied twice in this close battle, once at 2-2 and again at 3-3.

Leetonia opened with two runs in the first, remaining on top until the third inning when Martin's scored twice to tie the count. Leetonia returned to the lead with one run in the fifth, but the Tires came from behind in the seventh, tying the score at 3-3 and extending the game into overtime.

One run in the first half of the extra inning gave Leetonia the victory as the Tires went scoreless in their half of the eighth.

Both teams collected six hits in the eight-inning contest. Kenny Brudery went the route on the mound for Leetonia, while Johnny McQuiston did likewise for Martin's.

Gaining a 5-1 lead in the early innings, Mullins Manufacturers staved off a late rally by Washingtonville to post their second victory in three second round games.

Rally Nets 3 Runs

Washingtonville's rally in the seventh inning netted three runs, one short of tying the score.

Pitcher Wayne Russell of Mullins limited Washingtonville to three hits, while his mates hammered Pitcher Herron for nine safe blows.

Making their first starts in the Church league's third round game, the Baptists and Young People's Catholic Club gained victories.

The Baptists edged St. Paul's Youth Club, 10 to 9, while the Y. P. C. C. swamped the Emmanuel Lutherans, 9 to 2.

REDS GET BACK IN WIN COLUMN

Snap Out of Slump With Victory Over New York Giants

NEW YORK, July 31.—When the Cincinnati Reds do hit a slump they make it as welcome as a moth in a suit factory.

The Rhinelanders were back on the victory pathway as they faced the final of a three-game series with the Giants tonight, with Bucky Walters called for mound maneuvers against Bill Lohman.

Walters, ace Cincinnati hurler, was shooting for his 16th victory, Lohman his tenth for the New Yorkers.

The Reds defeated the Giants 6-3 yesterday, chasing the baseball whammy in the eighth inning with a four run burst of scoring, behind the reliable pitching of Paul Deringer, who gave up six hits in seven innings.

They participated in an unprofitable outburst in the eighth over the umpiring. The Reds' coach, Jimmy Wilson, and Relief Hurler Walter (Jumbo) Brown of the Giants didn't like the decisions and were sent to the showers for saying so.

Load Bases

With the score tied the Reds loaded the bases in the eighth on two singles and a sacrifice which turned out safe. Pinchhitter Mike Dejan looked at a strike and his teammates took it up with Umpire George Magerkurth. Wilson's walking papers for the day were the result.

The New Yorkers had their round with the umpires a few minutes later, when Bill Weber grounded and was called safe at first. It didn't look that way to the Giants but Umpire Stewart won the argument, ousting Brown.

The Reds scored on the play and the bases were still loaded. Harry Craft singled to center for two more runs and Lonnie Frey brought in another with a single.

Theatre Attractions

The baby who played character roles in films before she could talk or walk, by appearing as a boy in her first two pictures, is "Baby Sandy," whose latest comedy, "Sandy Is a Lady," shows at the State tonight and Thursday, on a double bill with "The Captain Is a Lady."

Sandra, or Sandy as she is known professionally, was only six months old when she appeared in the Bing Crosby film "East Side of Heaven." She had featured roles in the two films, "Little Accident" and "Unexpected Father" while she gained "professional experience" and emerges as a full fledged star in her latest adventures on the screen.

The daughter of a Los Angeles milkman, Sandra Henville has an excellent cast of comedians for her picture including Mischa Auer, Butch and Buddy, young musicians, actors of "The Underpin," Nan Grey, Tom Brown, Eugene Pallette, Billy Gilbert and Edgar Kennedy.

The second feature "The Captain Is a Lady," featuring Charles Coburn, Beulah Bondi, Helen Broderick, Billie Burke, Virginia Grey and Dan Dailey, Jr., is the story of a retired sea captain who is given refuge in an old ladies home, with his wife when his poor business sense allows him to be swindled out of their home. Rather than separate the aged couple, the captain and his wife, played by Beulah Bondi, the ladies of the home agree to accept him and do, to his discomfort.

At the Grand tonight for the last times are: "A Fugitive from Justice," the story of a criminal worth a million dollars, head with Roger Pryor, Lure's Fairbanks, and "Meditation Heartbeat" with Robert Sterling, Virginia Gilmore and Joan Davis.

style themselves a Democratic convention.

"I and millions of other genuine Democrats throughout the United States will continue to protect and defend true democratic principles and will in no way, willingly or silently, tolerate any foreign bloc, call them New Dealers, or what not, that attempt to prostitute these principles and substitute therefor any isms of their own."

Run By Minority
Smith said the Democratic party had been taken over by a "minority bloc" twice in recent years—first by the Prohibitionists and then by the New Dealers.

The former New York governor asserted "the recent so-called Democratic convention in Chicago sounded the death knell of the Democratic party."

Smith described Willkie as "a life-long Democrat" and told reporters it looks like "a sure bet for Willkie" this year.

Seabury, a former associate justice of the New York court of appeals and Tammany Hall foe, told Willkie in a telegram that "your nomination justifies the hope that under your presidency order and equality of opportunity may supplant the present bureaucratic chaos which has paralyzed and demoralized industry."

Wind Spreads Flames
So intense were the flames, fed by chemicals and greases, that within two hours of the noon-time explosion nothing was left of the five-story brick building but crumbling walls.

Winds whipped the fire quickly across a railroad siding into a row of 20 houses. Sparks set off others across two other streets.

Each successive explosion—some counted 25—added to the panic.

About 150 of the factory's 450 workers were at their jobs when the first explosion shook all Camden. The others were at lunch.

Firemen from south Jersey communities and all available equipment from Philadelphia, across the Delaware river, responded to a general emergency alarm and controlled the flames after a nine-hour battle.

The program consists of:

1. The Act of Havana declaring all the republics opposed to transfer to other non-American nations or attempt to transfer or acquire interest in European possessions in this hemisphere.

2. Inter-American co-operation, through consultation and mutual exchange of information to combat "fifth columnists" or other subversive elements.

3. Mutual effort to settle American economic problems, including market dislocations resulting from the European war, and "economic defense" against encroachment of European barter systems.

The Act of Havana provides for joint administration of any foreign possession threatened by a non-American nation, but also recognizes the right of any American republic to act singly or jointly in emergency situations.

Secretary Hull, who was applauded when he led the parade of signatories, issued a statement reviewing the conference as he embarked last night with other members of the United States delegation for Miami.

The American republics, he said, "have demonstrated to the world their unalterable determination to preserve and strengthen the spirit and the system of continental unity and solidarity. They thus have cleared the decks for effective action whenever such action may become necessary."
